Christine, I have this in front of several clients. The changes noted significantly improve the offering. I have communicated this to them.

In addition, we at FCA are considering purchasing them.

Will know more by Wednesday of this week.

Given that a buyer would have 19 months to use the $1,131 hours and the fact our VistaJet pricing is 30% below their current rates, I would think people would be very interested in this.

Subject: VistaJet Program Agreement Update

Hi Brad,

As a follow-up to our conversation today, VistaJet's US President told me that they would agree to the following modifications to our program agreement:

1. The 531 hours currently slated to expire on June 30, 2022 can rollover to the following year. There would be a charge to do that. We would have to pay the difference between the 2022 hourly rate of $12,372 and the adjusted 2023 rate for those hours. [NOTE: The contract allows VistaJet to increase annually by the greater of 2.5% or the rate of increase of the most recent monthly G20 Consumer Price Index as published by the OECD at the most recent anniversary of the Start Date.]

2. We have an additional three months – until September 30, 2023 to use all of the 1,131 hours.

I think removing the time pressure of the June 30th expiration is huge. The assignee now has 19 months to use the 1,131 hours!
